Fell From a Window.—Sunday night two small solm of Mr. Victor Savaugeot were playing in the second story of his residence on Main street, between 12th and 14th, when one of them, a lad of seven years, fell through an open window upon the pavement below and was badly hurt. Notwithstanding his severe injuries, the boy limped through the store room to a hydrant in the rear, and was bathing his bruised limbs in a stream of water when his father came to the rescue.

Accident at Little Washington.—
Last Saturday as V. Harding and his brother-in-law, Julius Lemoyne, were riding in a buckwason near the livery stable of E. Saxton, in Washington, Pa, their horse took fright, and in kicking threw one leg over the shaft and became unmanageable. Mr. Harding in jumping from thelwason was struck by the wheel and had his feotlar bone broken. It is thought he will be about again in a few days.

HAND MASHED.—A man named Frank Harris, who works at the Creek Mill, had his right hand badly bruised yester-day morning by a wedge that had been driven in the side of a fly-wheel. He had stopped to speak to a fellow work-man, and his hand was resting on the railing at the time of the accident.

A HAYES AND WHEELER CLUB ORGAN-ZED IN THE SEVENTH WARD.—The meeting at Lukens' grocery, on the Island, las ing at Lukens' grocery, on the Island, last night, for the purpose of organiting a Hayes and Wheeler Club, was well attended. The mesting came to order by the election of Wm. Erskine, Esq., as temporary Chairman, and Mr. C. H. Collier as temporary Secretary.

A committee consisting of Capt. Hiram Young, A. G. Robinson and T. J. Blair was appointed to report permanent officers for an organization to be known as the "Seventh Ward-Hayes and Wheeler Guards."

The committee, after a few moments consultation, submitted the following report:

THE BRIDGEFORT TILDEN AND HENDRICKS POLE.—Last night the Democrats assembled in Bridgeport, brought by special wagons and special inducements, to raise the pole on which they so signally failed on Saturday. Strong and sufficient rope was furnished by John Berry, of GWheeling, and after a vast amount of fear and trembling, the pole stood erect. Next in order was the raising of the flag. Dr. Cook made some fearful gyrations, and while we wondered at the meaning thereof, a small advil cannon belched forth its flame, the band played the "Star control of the state of the stat

So far as Governor Hayes controls and so far as governor mayes controls and represents his own case, it is beyond the criticism of reformer or independent. By record and character, by association and sympathy, and now by his letter of acpitance, he occupies the most advanced ceptance, ne occupies the control of the civil service question, as nobody could more clearly propose the reform treatment of it. Governor Hayes has done everything that could be done to remove the wound to the reform cause, and the damage to the Republican party, by the defeat of Mr. Brislow at Cincinnati.

* * He has clearly allied himself with the reform elements of the party. Not only by his character, but by his words, and, still more, perhaps, by the drift of public opinion and political association, must be make his administration, if he has one to make, out of the circle of men who have made themselves conspicuous as the leaders of reform. It a abmidantly safe to predict that George Curtis, Benjamin Bristow, Carl Schuz and their likes will be the inspiring and controlling influences of a Hayes administration.

This is one of two conspicuous adform platform Nobody, controlling insulates by a staylor instration.

This is one of two conspicuous advantages which President Hayes would have over President Tilden. His work would be easier, because of the more sympathetic and stronger hands about him, because more of the recognized and trusted leaders of reform would be associated with him at lonce. The second and connected advantages would be the absence of any great clamor or canse for clamor for a general change in the office-holders under him. The great body of the Democratic party clearly enough do not mean their promised civil service reform shall begin until after there has been a general change in the offices. The spoils doctrine must have one more illustration before virtue shall set in. Whatever President Tilden's own puirposes might be, he could not wholly resisting every freindent to make it possible for him to refuse a very wide and demoralizing change in the public service.

We ly no means plead for the retenoithe entire present civil service army, but if we are to put in practice the new form doctrines, it is essential that we begin radically at once, and wherever, faithful, capable and honest men are in the public service, keep them. Now we presume it is fair to say that two-thirds, if not five-sixths of the present office-holding class are doing their work well and satisfactory, and that to turn them out and put in new and inexperienced men would be a great inconvenience to the country and a heavy loss to its treasury, while it would throw away the present favorable state of public, opinion for placing the public service on an improved 'footing. President Hayes would find abundant field for change in conspicuous cases of incompetency and corruption in the government service. He could not fail to improve them promptly and efficiently. But he could easily stop there, as President Tilden with his surroundings, with his obligations, hardly could do.

It is in these two respects—the association with him of the most conspicuous and trusted reform elements of the count
